King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is now so ashamed of the part he took in the war as Germany's cats-paw, that he has abdicated his throne in favor of his son.

If the kaiser was to do the same trick, it would be like jumping out of the frying pan into the fire—both for the German people and the world.

A special dispatch to this great family journal, via overland route from Sonnding Creek, says: that the kaiser has abdicated, his tottering throne in favor of a home in the island of St. Helena; where he can have the "freedom of the sea," one of the things he has been raving for so long, and can now get.

"Kaiser wears a red flannel now," says Annie Merrill, in the Calgary Herald.

A "black heart," covered by a red flannel—the symbol of the blood of murdered women and babies.

The kaiser still thinks he can fool the Allies by sending out his dummy peace notes.

But he himself is the biggest befuddled guy in Germany.

"The Germans have a new general—Retreat," says the Calgary Canadian.

And the new general is the swiftest and most proficient Germany has yet or ever likely to produce.

In one hand the Huns approach the Allies with an offer of peace while in the other they carry a torch with which they are firing French towns, villages and cities as they pass out of them on their way back to the fatherland.

How Hun-like all through the war. "Can the leopard change his spots?"

"Does the chancellor represent the people of Germany," President Wilson asks.

It's a poser for the chancellor, for doubtless he represents only that old buffer, the kaiser, to trip up the Allies.

"Turkey is angry with Bulgaria,"—Headline.

"Probably sore Because Bulgaria thought of it first,"—Star.

More likely because Bulgaria got there first.

Another Kaiser-Made "Peace"

ANOTHER made-in-Germany "peace" has been handed in to President Wilson by the kaiser this time. The last peace trap came from Austria alone—apparently—but behind the mask could be seen plainly the cunning, hypocritical face of the kaiser, but the proposal met the contempt it deserved. The kaiser seeing that his monkey trick didn't work with the Allies, this time comes out boldly from behind his mark, and joins in with his poor dupe in making another of his "scrap of paper" peace proposals.

It is easy to see the cause of this fresh outburst of peace talk from the kaiser. When Foch let the German army make the success it did towards Paris and the channel ports this spring, the kaiser was too flushed with conceit with an easy victory and, besides, in driving the hated British into the sea, that he forgot all about his scraps of paper peace proposals, being so sure of being in a position to force his own peace upon the French and the British at the point of the sword—the kind of peace, only a thousand times worse, that was meted out to Russia and Roumania. But now that he and his "invincible" army are getting it in the neck, and are being driven back and every day the Allied armies are getting nearer the German border, the kaiser is trying personally another of his peace cordials—a sleeping dose. It is not, however, in the terms of a defeated supplicant, but that of a German conquering autocrat. Not until this hypocritical old bluffer gets it good and hard in the neck and forced down on his marrow-bones in his own palace in Berlin will he be convinced that he is licked to a frazzle, also that the Allied army is bigger enough in Germany to enforce their demands, and so let his royal nibs know once and for all that he is not dealing with a docile people who believe in his divine right to rule bunkum—by the sword, if necessary, but in a divine freedom for all alike.

Every peace proposal has come from the kaiser, in one form or another, but always a "Made-in-Germany" peace. Early in the war the Allies stated then their only terms of peace, and undoubtedly they will adhere to them to the letter till they have been fulfilled. If when the outcome of the war was the darkest for the Allies they still were firm in their high ideals as expressed in their peace terms, it is unthinkable that they will be caught by any of the crafty trick of the kaiser, when victory is so near and certain, and that they will soon be in a position to enforce their terms as conquerors. A Small Building that Puts Money in Your Pocket every year

Every New Machine you bought this year costs nearly or quite double what the same machine cost you three years ago. Repairs for old machines are equally as high.

These new high costs cut into your profits no matter what you get for your products. And a good deal of that high cost can be avoided. Your machines can be made to last and do good work for 3 to 5 years longer

A Simple Shed for Storage

A few pounds or grease, also a quart or two of paint will save the cost of the shed in one year or two at the outside.

The shed will last for years, and put a nice bunch of money into your bank account each year

Build it now and begin this cost cutting and profit-making at once.

Plans free—low figures on material and quick service.

The Bitter Got Bit

Wilson's answer, or rather his mode of reply, was not the one expected by Prince Maximilian to his peace bait, and has, doubtless, put him and Kaiser Bill into the soup. They are in the same predicament that the Jews were when the question was asked some two thousand years ago: "Whose image and superscription is this?" Whichever way the Jews answered the question they well knew that they would get it in the neck. Maximilian has got to answer the President's question, and now watch him and Kaiser Bill squirm, for it's up to them now. The kaiser may be able to fool his own people, but not the Allies worth a cent.

One of the lately Mennonite emigrant children is reported to have told a school inspector that it was very wrong to fight anybody.

But the Mennonites are ready and willing to fight the Alberta government on the school question, by having their own text books in school and teaching the German language, which the Minister of Education has forbidden.

Terms are right and just to all alike—the only terms that will free the world from autocratic military Prussianism, and give to the world justice and peace.

There is one more clause that should be added to President Wilson's list, and it should head the list—"UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER" immediately—the talking can be done later—with sufficient Allied troops in Germany to assist in the talking.

Chautauqua at Chinook Nov. 14, 15, 16

The Ionian Serenaders are coming Chautauqua festival to open the three days' program with two concerts on the opening day. The company is composed of four talented girls in costume, who sing, read and play, both ensemble and individual presentations.

One of the most original and pleasing innovations successfully featured by the Ionians is their revival of the accordion as a popular concert instrument. All four girls play the instrument and succeed in getting a lot of music and a lot of fun out of it, both for their audience and for themselves. Not the least charm about the girls is their remarkable versatility, evincing equal adeptness on the violin, cello and at the piano—also enlivening their programs with delightful pantomimes, readings and impersonations.

Dr. G. Whitefield Ray spent fourteen years in exploration work in South America, and is possibly the best informed man in America to-day on conditions in certain sections of that great but little known country. Dr. Ray carries with him a priceless collection of curios collected during his many years labor in South America, and these serve to add interest to his discourse. You may think that you know very much about South America now. After you have heard Ray you will be willing to admit that your store of knowledge has been quadrupled. He comes to the Chautauqua Festival the second night.

Flying in Flames

The Amazing Escape of Two Airmen in a Thrilling Dive to Earth

"Nose diving" in flames from 10,000 feet (almost 2 miles) two British airmen, an Englishman and a Scot, operating on the western front, recently displayed the grit and presence of mind which has come to be associated with the Royal Air Force work.

Here is the observer's story as he told it in hospital.

"We were on an O. P. (offensive patrol) between A and Y—and my scout had taken us about four miles over the German line. After a quiet hour or so, suddenly out of the clouds right behind us, appeared a formation of twelve Heinkel bombers. There were eight machines in our formation, and soon, at the height of 10,000 feet, my pilot and I were actively engaged with one Albatross.

"But this Albatross Scout proved a quicker machine than ours, and our particular Hun got right on our tail. He peppered our tank with machine gun bullets, and I was sure being in the tank, the petrol was squirted all over the machine, which immediately burst into flames.

"My pilot promptly struck her nose down engine full on—for the short time she lasted. This particular type of machine is a 'Pusher', with the engine behind, and the petrol tank under the pilot's seat; so you can imagine the situation, sitting right on this tank, which was squirting flaming petrol in flames backwards, forcing the pilot to quit all over the plane. For that reason the flames would not burn either pilot or observer, until they actually ate their way into the fuselage. I had been in a 'ractor' we should not have had a snowball's chance, and I should not be here to tell the tale.

"When we were about 6,000 feet above the earth, my pilot shouted to me: 'Let's jump, Bill! He was naturally much better than I, and his leather coat was all ablaze. But, seeing our front line of trenches almost 10 miles away, naturally, it looked to him as though we must both be killed, and he was guessing which would be the better to jump or wait for more flames!

"Then I managed to get the fire extinguisher playing on the pilot, keeping the flames from his face and hands as much as possible, while he retained his hold on the joy-stick. He mysteriously kept his eyes fixed on the amazing extent, in the circumstances.

"By this time we were down to about 3,000 feet, the fire extinguisher had lost its usefulness, and the fire burned its way down through the fuselage. The flames from the cockpit, burned away and broke through, letting the three Lewis guns and the machine gun fall through, I fell through, too, but caught hold of the rail round the nacelle and hung myself back up, on, perching on the side of the cockpit.

"When we got to about 600 feet our engine fell out, but we kept on, clinging to the framework.

"My recollections cease from when we got to about 100 feet. The last thing I remember is seeing Tommie running about with stretchers towards the spot where we had fallen. I guess my pilot fell a few seconds before I did but he had flattened out so that we must have been carried off very well, something less than 100 feet.

"I awoke the next morning at a hospital, and found myself with a fractured ankle, and burns on body and face. My first inquiry was, naturally, about my pilot, and I discovered him in the next bed; he was lying there, swathed in bandages. He had burns all over and a bit of a hole in his body where the joy-stick hit him on landing.

"But here we both were, with plenty of kick, and I am sure you can bet your life I did not strafe him regarding the precise quality of his landing."

Art of Camouflage

British Officer Says Germans Brought It to State of Artistic Perfection

A British air officer writing from the western front says that the Germans have this spring brought camouflage to a state of artistic perfection that is almost unbelievable. "The most expert and highly experienced airmen are often deceived even when flying low," he writes. "As a first step, the German military authorities sought suggestions from the most distinguished German artists in color. As a next step, camouflage was turned on to the business of carrying out the artists' ideas.

"Bills of canvas stretched to look like roads were constructed, under which regiments could march without being seen. Paper encampments were improvised in the woods, villages and factories of a purely fictitious character were set up merely to distract the eyes of the enemy and keep the movements of troops and guns. Nothing on so vast a scale has ever been attempted before."

Mrs. Sparks (dejectedly)—Our cook is going to leave, Frank. She says the kitchenette isn't large enough to turn around in.

Mr. Sparks—By George! I wonder if she'll stay if I install a turntable?

He—Yes, I know, and that only goes to show that it is, sometimes possible to be too persistent.—Boston Transcript.

A Lesson in Americanese

The Explanation of an Expressive Bit of Americanese

In London one night toward the end of February, Don Martin, of the New York Herald, and I were crossing the Strand above Trafalgar Square in the midst of the unlighted street we bumped into a group of four uniformed figures. Looking close we saw they were an American soldier, that one was a lanky Scot in kilts, slightly under the influence of something even more exhilarating than the idea of the kilts, and that the remaining two were English privates. We gave them right away that an international discussion of some sort was under way. At the moment of our approach the American, a little dark fellow who spoke with an accent that betrayed his Italian nativity, had the floor, or rather he had the sidewalk. We listened in the half-darkness to listen.

"It's like this," expounded the Yankee-Italian, "I'm a 'I should worry' it means I mean—I mean I should not worry. You getta me, huh?"

He glanced about him, plainly pleased with the very clear and comprehensive explanation of this expressive bit of Americanese, which he had given him in a sudden burst of inspiration.

The others stared at him blankly. It was one of the Englishmen who was roused by the very clear and comprehensive explanation of this expressive bit of Americanese, which he had given him in a sudden burst of inspiration.

"You 'ave nothin' to worry about, hat all, and so you say that he 'ave worryin'—his hat all?" he inquired. "You 'ave nothin' to worry about, hat all, and so you say that he 'ave worryin'—his hat all?"

"Well, then, 'all I can say his hat looks like 'all Yankee nonsense to me."

"Lads, I'm sorry, laddie, to be put in the Scotchman. 'If you've naught to worry about, why speak of it at all?' That's what I would be pleased to know."

"Hoh, never mind," spoke up the second Englishman; "let's go get another drink at the pub."

"Foolish!" he said, taking his countryman in his arms. "While we're blooming 'pub' as closed-it, arther hours for drink."

But the canny Scot already was feeling about with a huge paw in the back folds of his kilt. From those folds he drew a bottle of whisky, and he slowly drew forth a flat flask.

Lads, he said happily, "in the language of our American friends here, we should worry, because it happens, thanks to me own forethought, we 'ave na concern."

Only Given Two Hours

Pathetic Story of the End of the Emperor

Given two hours in which to prepare for the end, Nicholas Romanoff, former Russian emperor, was taken out by his executioners in a state of panic. He was given two hours to prepare himself for the end, and he was given two hours to prepare himself for the end.

Nicholas was awakened at 5 o'clock on the morning of the day of his execution by a patrol of a non-military officer and six men. He was told to dress and was taken to a room where the decision of the Soviet council was communicated to him.

The former emperor, it is added, received the announcement of the sentence of death with great calmness. He returned to his bedroom and collapsed in a chair. After a few minutes he arose, and he was taken to the place of execution.

He was unable to stand without support when the place of execution was reached. He was given two hours to prepare himself for the end, and he was given two hours to prepare himself for the end.

Heroes All

The Heroic Men Below Deck on Merchant Ships

Would the Zebruggie victory have been what it was had her stockhold where she had been shown? An old ship with old boilers but needing, above all things, speed, especially in the matter of the engine, a bump into the vindictive had gained the Mole. Not much else was known about the fortunes of the day until home was reached.

It is said that when the engineer commander entered the boiler room and asked the artificer engineer what he had to say about his men the reply was what every one of them must have rejoiced to hear. "I am not going to say anything for or against them but I was going to tell tomorrow night I would have the same men with me."

Admiral Sir David Beatty knows where the men below deck are. He says that high up on the roll of British heroes must be placed the names of the engineers and their staffs on board ships.

Canadian Village in Britain

Temporary Village Among Trees Is a Triumph

In some of the quiet rural districts of England, where green meadows and woods have been growing for generations, a new village has appeared. An old sward just as their ancestors did in the days of old Robin Hood, strange sights of human habitation have been seen. The village is a collection of small houses, built of wood and stone, and the sound of the sea and the sound of the sea have been heard. The village is a triumph.

This temporary village among the trees must be reckoned a triumph of man's genius in surrounding difficulties. The village is a triumph of man's genius in surrounding difficulties.

Work of British Mystery Ships

Haystack on Ancient-looking Craft Given Name a Surprise

Interesting revelations regarding the work of British mystery ships, which have played an important part in anti-submarine warfare, are made in a new book, "The Mystery Ships of the Royal Navy," published by the London Times. The book shows how British seamen have met German submarines with craft and cunning.

Until recently the public has known nothing about the mystery ships, known in the navy as the "Q" ships, although several officers, notably Captain Gordon Campbell, have been decorated for their services on these vessels. Details now can be made public, as the Germans are becoming aware through bitter experience of the methods used against them.

How a "woman and a baby" accounted for a U-boat is told by the correspondent for the "Q" ships, which were used to lure submarines to a point where they could be sunk.

Office at Feed Barn, opposite Crown Lumber YardThe Fourteen Proposals

The fourteen proposals laid down by President Wilson as a basis for any peace proposals from Germany, are as follows, which will be strictly enforced if there is any discussion on the present peace proposal from Germany:

Days of private international understandings are gone and covenants of peace must be reached in the open.

Freedom of the seas in peace or war.

Removal of economic barriers among nations associating themselves to maintain peace.

Guarantees of the reduction of armaments.

Impartial adjustments of colonial claims, based on popular rights.

Evacuation of and opportunity for Russia.

Evacuation of Belgium.

Evacuation of French territory and righting of the Alsace-Lorraine wrong.

Readjustment of Italy's frontiers along lines of nationality.

Free opportunity for autonomous development of the peoples of Austria Hungary.

Evacuation of Roumania, Serbia, and Montenegro, and guaranties for all the Balkan states.

Sovereignty for Turkey's portion of the Ottoman Empire and autonomy for other nationalities.

An independent Poland, with access to the sea.

Breezelets

The Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, says that two of President Wilson's points must be considered rejected—the separation of Alsace-Lorraine from Germany and the incorporation in independent Poland of Prussian Poland.

No doubt the editor realizes that very soon Alsace-Lorraine will be in the hands of American troops and that independent Poland of Prussian Poland will be an accomplished fact.

"German troops to withdraw from occupied territory before even peace is discussed," says President Wilson.

To be sure, President Wilson's start is a snorter for the Huns' to swallow, before any discussion is commenced.

The only safe armistice to the kaiser's latest sham peace stunt, is to keep on fighting until the Allies peace terms are complied with in every particular.

When Turkey knows what the answer of the Allies is to the kaiser's latest peace proposals, she will probably do the "gobble, gobble!" alone, for peace.

General association of nations for mutual guaranties to independence and territory integrity to large and small states alike.

An Advertisement by Charles Dickens

CHARLES DICKENS is one of the world's great teachers. Here is what he has to say in one of his books:

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £18 10 0—result, happiness. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £20 0 0—result, misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of Day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—in short, you are forever flooded. As I am."

The saving of a part of one's income was always a good policy.

Prudent men and women have always maintained a margin of saving.

But to-day we must go further in our efforts to save than ever before.

To-day it is a matter of the gravest importance that each Canadian seek ways and means to economize by cutting down expenditures for unnecessary things, saving the money he spends on things he could do without, so that when the Nation needs to borrow money he will be in a position to do his full duty.

There is war-shortening work waiting for every dollar that can be saved.

IF Charles Dickens were writing to Canadians to-day he would probably give us advice to this effect.

"My other piece of advice, Canadians, you know. No matter what percentage of your annual income you have previously saved, your efforts to-day should be to save more. The advantage of so doing is threefold: By the practice of economy you conserve the material and labor which must be devoted to the grim task before us; you cultivate the priceless habit of thrift; you gather more and more money to lend to the Nation for the prosecution of the war to a quick and certain victory."

NOTICE—MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 1917REGISTRATION OF UNITED STATES CITIZENS

Male citizens of the United States living in Canada of AGES 21-30, both inclusive, MUST REGISTER BY REGISTERED POST with the Registrar under the Military Service Act of the district in which they live, during the TEN DAYS NEXT FOLLOWING SEPTEMBER 28th, 1918; and such CITIZENS OF THE AGES 19, 20 AND 31-44, both inclusive, must so register during the TEN DAYS NEXT FOLLOWING OCTOBER 12th, 1918. It must be emphasized that THIS INCLUDES AMERICANS LIVING IN CANADA OF THE ABOVE AGES, MARRIED AND SINGLE, and includes ALSO ALL THOSE WHO HAVE SECURED DIPLOMATIC EXEMPTION OR HAVE REGISTERED WITH AN AMERICAN CONSUL, or HAVE REGISTERED FOR MILITARY SERVICE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Registration letters may be handed to local Postmasters for despatch to the proper Registrar, under the Military Service Act.

MILITARY SERVICE BRANCH.NOTICE—MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 1917*MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS

Having in view the importance of leaving a sufficient number of men on those farms, which are actually contributing to the National Food Supply, notice is hereby given as follows:

1. ALL MEMBERS OF CLASS I POSSESSING EXEMPTION AS FARMERS which is expiring and WHO WISH TO REMAIN EXEMPT should communicate with the Registrars under the M.S.A. of their respective districts, REQUESTING AN EXTENSION IN TIME OF SUCH EXEMPTION. Questionnaires will thereupon be issued to these men by the Registrars and they will receive further exemption upon furnishing satisfactory proof that they are contributing sufficiently to the National Food Supply.

2. In order to facilitate productive employment during the Winter months, MEN EXEMPTED AS FARMERS SHOULD APPLY TO THE REGISTRARS FOR PERMITS TO ENGAGE FOR THE WINTER IN SOME OCCUPATION OF NATION OR INTEREST, SUCH AS LUMBERING, MUNITION WORK, ETC. Such permits will serve to enable exempted farmers to pursue other useful occupations for the months during which farming operations cannot be carried on.

MILITARY SERVICE BRANCH.CANADA'S VICTORY BONDS.

BY JOHN PRESCOTT GUILD.
When insane lust went forth to fight
A world in peace at rest.
Declaring that its might was right,
And Heaven at its behest,
It sang the awful "Hymn of Hate,"
And filled a happy land with fire.

Arous'd to arms, brave Britain rush'd!
And all her sons across the sea
Swore that the "Hun" must quick be crushed,
So men may ev'rywhere be free:
Our Canada lagged not behind,
In onward march of Britains sons,
In many climes, all of one mind,
With money, men and guns.

Lo! by this help the foe now flees;
But more is yet in need,
To bring the haughty to their knees,
And make oppressors all take heed:
Let all freemen in Canada,
Be ready with each purse,
And buy a bond, and victory
Shall aye destroy the curse.

Oh! then the sons of Canada
Will sing with louder voice,
And set apart a Freedom-day,
To for our land rejoice:
Now buy a bond for victory—
Request but once again,—
It shall go down in history,
The call was not in vain.

Great Responsibility Rests on Traffic

Man

Most people imagine milestones to be quite ancient institutions. They are, but the first stone milestones to be erected in England were set up on the Cambridge road between Barkway and Welwyn in 1727, and it was not until forty years later that their use became at all general. True there are two in London and a great many elsewhere, but the first stone milestone of the 17th century, still standing—one at Tadcaster, and the other near Withington, Telford, Shropshire, is the only one of the kind. The distance to the places named on them, being, in effect,

Artificial Eyes for Rubbers

Will Not Irritate Socket and are Unbreakable

Glass eyes are notoriously uncomfortable, and often uncomfortable to French workers, aimed at producing a substance of sufficient elasticity to follow the movements of the face and changes in the eye socket and at the same time of sufficient hardness to present a smooth, natural appearance. The new eyes have solved the difficulty of constistence by making the front of the new eye of hard cast glass, and the back of the same to represent the natural appearance, and the back of the eye of soft, caoutchouc, which is covered with a ball filled with air. These hollow eyes, have been found to answer better than any other eyes, and are soft and elastic; they respond in a remarkable manner to the ocular movements of the face.

Women Navvies

Seven hundred women are now working in the construction of the new line in the north of England—waste land reclaimed from the Tees—and helping to dig the ship-bell-bottom for the new campaign. Work calling for a heavy expenditure of muscular strength is no longer a man's monopoly. In every case, if a man of military age is replaced by a woman, the women work in gangs as large as the navvies' gangs, and the women and navvies are also women. The work they are doing gives great satisfaction, and in the evening, the women are on the armchairs on which heels are to be laid they are said to be superior to an equal number of men.

To Prevent Fruit Spoiling

The remedy is to boil the fruit
a second time for ten minutes.
This will have the effect of slightly reducing the phenol.
Then when the fruit is about to be returned to the jars, cautiously add just a drop of peppermint extract. Great care should be exercised, however, as too much peppermint would cause another disagreeable taste. Work only for the disappearance of the taste of the phenol. Allow no taste of peppermint to appear. One drop should be sufficient for one quart jar of fruit, but if after sampling, there is the taste of phenol, add a second drop. If a larger quantity of fruit is cooked treat the quantity in the same way.

The fruit is then ready for boiling, and in addition to scald-ing the jars, new rubber rings should be used. As a matter of precaution the rubbers should be boiled in order to remove traces of phenol, should there be any.

If great caution is taken, oil of cinnamon or oil of pepper-ment can be used just as effectively as the peppermint extract.
After going through the above operations this fruit is ready for use.

you money to prove it up if you wish.
Or let them give you a new loan, as large, and probably larger, than you can get elsewhere. The district needs all the money we can get hold of in
